

Alexander Tanri S.H.

Email: alextanri@ijrs.or.id

Short Profile

Alexander Tanri S.H., or usually called Alex, is a law graduate from the Faculty of Law of Universitas Indonesia. Alex currently acts as researcher at IJRS. Alex has interests in issues relating to criminal justice reform. Alex is involved in several programs, including drafting the Narcotics Law with the Ministry of Law, preparing the implementation of Victim Trust Fund with LPSK, and Evaluating the current Corruption Sentencing Guideline with the Supreme Court.

Current Position

Researcher

Pendidikan

1. Bachelor of Law from Universitas Indonesia

Work Experiences

1. Researcher at Narasi TV (2022)
2. Enumerator at IJRS for Indexation of Narcotics Court Decisions Using Articles 111-116 and Article 127 (2020)

Current IJRS's Programs

1. Revision of the Narcotics and Psychotropics Bill
2. Drafting Government Regulation for the New Criminal Code regarding Corporate Criminal Sanctions
3. Anti-Discrimination Bill
4. Research on the Governance of Victim Assistance Funds with the Witness and Victim Protection Agency (LPSK)
5. Drafting of a Supreme Court Regulation (PERMA) on Guidelines for Prosecuting Narcotics Crimes

6. Drafting of a Supreme Court Regulation on Guidelines for Prosecuting Terrorism Crimes
7. Monitoring and Evaluation of the Sentencing Guidelines for Articles 2 and 3 of the Indonesian Corruption Bill

Publication Results

- Updates to Criminal Procedure Law Following the Enactment of the 2023 Criminal Code
- Opportunities for Implementing Victim Trust Fund Governance in the Witness and Victim Protection Agency for the Recovery of Crime Victims
- Recommendations for Civil Procedure Law Policy
- Translation of the Dutch Criminal Procedure Code
- Study of Law Enforcement (Enforcement Mechanism) in the Draft Anti-Discrimination Bill